

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	References	2
2	The history of earth pressure theory	3
2.1	Retaining walls for fortifications	5
2.2	Earth pressure theory as an object of military engineering	9
2.2.1	In the beginning there was the inclined plane	10
2.2.2	From inclined plane to wedge theory	20
2.2.3	Charles Augustin Coulomb	23
2.2.4	A magazine for engineering officers	34
2.3	Modifications to Coulomb earth pressure theory	36
2.3.1	The trigonometrisation of earth pressure theory	36
2.3.2	The geometric way	44
2.4	The contribution of continuum mechanics	54
2.4.1	The hydrostatic earth pressure model	56
2.4.2	The new earth pressure theory	58
2.5	Earth pressure theory from 1875 to 1900	67
2.5.1	Coulomb or Rankine?	68
2.5.2	Earth pressure theory in the form of masonry arch theory	69
2.5.3	Earth pressure theory à la française	71
2.5.4	Kötter's mathematical earth pressure theory	75
2.6	Experimental earth pressure research	78
2.6.1	The precursors of experimental earth pressure research	78
2.6.2	Earth pressure tests at the testing institute for the statics of structures at Berlin Technical University	81
2.6.3	The merry-go-round of discussions of errors	85
2.6.4	The emergence of soil mechanics	87
2.7	Earth pressure theory in the discipline-formation period of geotechnical engineering	93
2.7.1	Terzaghi	96
2.7.2	Rendulic	99
2.7.3	Ohde	100
2.7.4	Errors and confusion	101
2.7.5	A hasty reaction in print	103

2.7.6	Foundations + soil mechanics = geotechnical engineering	103
2.8	Earth pressure theory in the consolidation period of geotechnical engineering	109
2.8.1	New subdisciplines in geotechnical engineering	110
2.8.2	Determining earth pressure in practical theory of structures	111
2.9	Earth pressure theory in the integration period of geotechnical engineering	116
2.9.1	Computer-assisted earth pressure calculations	118
2.9.2	Geotechnical continuum models	119
2.9.3	The art of estimating	124
2.9.4	The history of geotechnical engineering as an object of construction history	125
	References	128
3	Methods for the determination of earth pressure	145
3.1	Overview and bound methods	145
3.1.1	Overview of the methods	145
3.1.2	Upper and lower bounds	146
3.2	Kinematic mechanism methods for active earth pressure	147
3.3	Kinematic mechanism methods for passive earth pressure	150
3.4	Static stress field methods	154
3.4.1	Fundamentals	154
3.4.2	Rankine's solution	155
3.4.3	Theory of Boussinesq/Résal/Caquot	156
3.4.4	Solution by Pregl/Sokolowski	157
3.4.5	Analysis of Goldscheider	157
3.4.6	Approach of Patki/Mandal/Dewaikar	158
3.5	Tests and measurements	159
3.5.1	Fundamentals and scaling laws	159
3.5.2	Evaluation of test results and application of scaling laws	163
3.5.3	Example: active earth pressure under plane strain conditions from soil self-weight	164
3.5.4	Example: passive earth pressure under plane strain conditions from soil self-weight	165
3.5.5	Example: spatial earth resistance in front of soldier piles	169
3.5.6	Example: spatial earth resistance in front of square anchor slabs	169
3.5.7	Further examples	170
3.6	Finite Element Method	172
3.6.1	General	172
3.6.2	Examples	174
	References	189
4	Active earth pressure under plane strain conditions	195
4.1	Fundamental considerations	195
4.2	Soil self-weight, infinite uniformly distributed surcharges and cohesion	197
4.2.1	Vertical wall, level ground, horizontal earth pressure	198

4.2.2	Vertical wall, level ground, inclined earth pressure	198
4.2.3	General case	199
4.3	Cohesion, calculated tension and minimum earth pressure	199
4.3.1	Determination of the classic earth pressure	200
4.3.2	Minimum earth pressure in comparison with the resultant of earth pressure	201
4.3.3	Minimum earth pressure in comparison with the earth pressure ordinate	201
4.3.4	Minimum earth pressure and surcharges	202
4.4	Vertical line loads and strip loads	203
4.4.1	Introduction	203
4.4.2	Standard slip surface from soil self-weight	204
4.4.3	Analysis of any slip surface angle	206
4.5	Horizontal line and strip loads	208
4.6	Layered soil	209
4.7	Discontinuous ground level	210
4.8	Discontinuous wall surfaces	212
4.9	Distribution of active earth pressure	212
	References	213
5	At-rest earth pressure	215
5.1	Soil self-weight and infinite uniformly distributed surcharges	215
5.1.1	Horizontal ground	215
5.1.2	Inclined ground	217
5.2	Concentrated loads, line loads and strip loads	219
	References	223
6	Passive earth pressure under plane strain conditions	225
6.1	Fundamental considerations	225
6.2	Soil self-weight, infinite uniformly distributed surcharges and cohesion with parallel movement	227
6.2.1	Straight slip surfaces	227
6.2.2	Pregl/Sokolowski	229
6.2.3	Comparison	230
6.3	Rotation about the top or the toe	231
6.4	Distribution of passive earth pressure	232
	References	233
7	Spatial active earth pressure	235
7.1	Fundamental considerations	235
7.2	Cylindrical surfaces	237
7.3	Retaining wall across the slope	239
	References	242
8	Spatial passive earth pressure	245
8.1	Overview	245

8.2	Passive earth pressure in front of soldier piles according to Weißbach	245
8.3	Procedure according to DIN 4085 for limited wall sections References	248 249
9	Influence of groundwater on earth pressure	251
9.1	Groundwater at rest	251
9.2	Flowing groundwater	251
9.3	Water pressure in tension crack References	253 254
10	Compaction effects on earth pressure References	255 257
11	L- and T-cantilever retaining walls References	259 261
12	Silo pressure References	263 264
13	Dynamic loading References	265 266
14	Particular cases	267
14.1	Repeated quasi-static loading	267
14.2	Pipelines	269
14.3	Lateral pressure on piles	269
14.4	Creep pressure	270
14.5	Swelling pressure	270
14.6	Heavily fissured rock	270
14.7	Active earth pressure within dams References	272 272
15	Mobilisation of earth pressure	275
15.1	Overview	275
15.2	Limit values of displacement on reaching the active earth pressure	275
15.3	Limit values of displacement on reaching the passive earth pressure	276
15.4	Mobilisation functions	276
15.4.1	Mobilised active earth pressure	276
15.4.2	Mobilised passive earth pressure	279
15.4.3	Spatial mobilised passive earth pressure References	282 283

16	Application rules	285
16.1	Earth pressure inclination and angle of wall friction	285
16.2	Magnitude of earth pressure depending on the wall displacement	287
16.3	Earth pressure redistribution	289
16.4	Earth pressure as a favourable action	291
	References	292
17	Commentary on DIN 4085:2017-08	293
17.1	Overview	293
17.2	Active earth pressure	293
17.3	Passive earth pressure	295
17.4	Earth pressure due to compaction	295
17.5	Spatial earth pressure	296
17.6	Advices on supplement DIN 4085:2018-12	296
	References	297
18	Forty selected brief biographies	299
	References	355
Appendix A Terms, symbols, indices		383
A1:	Terms	383
A2:	Symbols	384
A3:	Indices	385
Appendix B Earth pressure tables		387
	References	387

